A Search for Happiness.

Rasselas returned home full of reflections, doubtful how to direct his future steps. Of the way to happiness he found the learned and simple equally ignorant; but as he was yet young, he flattered himself that he had time remaining for more experiments, and further inquiries. He communicated to Imlac his observations and his doubts, but was answered by him with new doubts, and remarks that gave him no comfort. He therefore discoursed more frequently and freely with his sister, who had yet the same hope with himself, and always assisted him to give some reason why, though he had been hitherto frustrated, he might succeed at last.

"We have hitherto," said she, "known but little of the world; we have never yet been either great or mean. In our own country, though we had royalty, we had no power, and in this we have not yet seen the private recesses of domestic peace. Imlac favors not our search, lest we should in time find him mistaken. We will divide the task between us: you shall try what is to be found in the splendor of the courts, and I will range the shades of humbler life. Perhaps command and authority may be the supreme blessings, as they afford most opportunities of doing good: or, perhaps, what this world can give may be found in the modest habitations of middle fortune; too low for great designs, and too high for penury and distress.

Rasselas applauded the design, and appeared next day with a splendid retinue at the Court of the Bassa. He was soon distinguished for his magnificence, and admitted, as a prince whose curiosity had brought him from distant countries, to an intimacy with the great officers, and frequent conversations with the Bassa himself.

He was at first inclined to believe that the man must be pleased with his own condition, whom all approached with reverence, and heard with obedience, and who had the power to extend his edicts to a whole kingdom. "There can be no pleasure," said he, "equal to that of feeling at once the joy of thousands all made happy by wise administration. Yet, since by the law of subordination this sublime delight can be in one nation but the lot of one, it is surely reasonable to think, that there is some satisfaction more popular and accessible, and that millions can hardly be subjected to the will of a single man only to fill his particular breast with incommunicable content."

These thoughts were often in his mind, and he found no solution of the difficulty. But as presents and civilities gained him more familiarity, he found that almost every man who stood high in employment hated all the rest, and was hated by them, and that their lives were a continual succession of plots and detections, stratagems and escapes, faction and treachery. Many of those who surrounded the Bassa, were sent only to watch and report his conduct: every tongue was muttering censure, and every eye was searching for a fault.

At last the letters of revocation arrived, the Bassa was carried in chains to Constantinople, and his name was mentioned no more.

"What are we now to think of the prerogatives of power," said Rasselas to his sister; "is it without any efficacy to good? or, is the subordinate degree only dangerous, and the supreme safe and glorious? Is the Sultan the only happy man in his dominions? or, is the Sultan himself subject to the torments of suspicion, and the dread of enemies."

In a short time the second Bassa was deposed. The Sultan, that had advanced him, was murdered by the Janizaries, and his successor had other views and different favorites.

The princess, in the meantime, insinuated herself into many families; for there are few doors through which liberality, joined with good humor, cannot find its way. The daughters of many houses were airy and cheerful, but Nekayah had been too long accustomed to the conversation of Imlac and her brother to be much pleased with the childish levity and prattle which had no meaning. She found their thoughts narrow, their wishes law, and their merriment often artificial. Their pleasures, poor as they were, could not be preserved pure, but were embittered by petty competitions and worthless emulation. They were always jealous of the beauty of each other: of a quality to which solicitude can add nothing, and from which detraction can take nothing away. Many were in love with trifles like themselves, and many fancied that they were in love when in truth they were only idle. Their affection was fixed neither on sense or virtue, and therefore seldom ended but in vexation. Their grief, however, like their joy, was transient: everything floated in their mind unconnected with the past or future, so that one desire as easily gave way to another, as a second stone cast into the water effaces and confounds the circles of the first.

With these girls she played as with inoffensive animals, and found them proud of her countenance and weary of her company.

But her purpose was to examine more deeply, and her affability easily persuaded the hearts that were swelling with sorrow to discharge their secrets in her ear; and those whom hope flattered, or prosperity delighted, often courted her to partake their pleasures.

The princess and her brother commonly met in the evening in a private Summer-house on the bank of the Nile, and related to each other the occurrences of the day. As they were sitting together, the princess cast her eye upon the river that flowed before her.

"Answer," said she, "great father of waters, thou that rollest thy floods through eighty nations, to the invocations of the daughters of thy native king. Tell me if thou waterest, through all thy course, a single habitation from which thou dost not hear the murmurs of complaint?"

"You are, then," said Rasselas, "not more successful in private houses than I have been in court."

"I have since the last partition of our provinces," said the princess, "enabled myself to enter familiarly into many families where there was the fairest show of prosperity and peace, and know not one house that is not haunted by some fury that destroys their quiet.

"I did not see ease among the poor, because I concluded that there it could not be found. But I saw many poor, whom I had supposed to live in affluence. Poverty, has, in large cities, very different appearances: it is often concealed in splendor, and often in extravagance. It is the care of a very great part of mankind to conceal their indigence from the rest: they support themselves by temporary expedients, and every day is lost in contriving for the morrow."

"This, however, was an evil which, though frequent, I saw with less pain, because I could relieve it. Yet some have refused my bounties; more offended with my quickness to detect their wants, than pleased with my readiness to succor them; and others, whose exigences compelled them to admit my kindness, have never been able to forgive their benefactress. Many, however, have been sincerely grateful, without the ostentation of gratitude, or the hope of other favors."

Nekayah, perceiving her brother's attention fixed, proceeded in her narrative.

"In families where there is not poverty there is common discord; if a kingdom be, as Imlac tells us, a great family, a family, likewise, is a little kingdom, torn with factions, and exposed to revolutions. An unpracticed observer expects the love of parents and children to be constant and equal; but this kindness seldom continues beyond the years of infancy; in a short time the children become rivals to their parents. Benefits are allayed by reproaches, and gratitude debased by envy.

Parents and children seldom act in concert: each child endeavors to appropriate the esteem or fondness of the parents, and the parents, with yet less temptation, betray each other to their children: thus, some place their confidence in the father, and some in the mother, and by degrees the house is filled with artifices and feuds.

"Surely," said the prince, "you must have been unfortunate in your choice of acquaintance: I am unwilling to believe that the most tender of all relations is thus impeded in its effects by natural necessity."

"Domestic discord," answered she, "is not inevitably and fatally necessary, but yet it is not easily avoided. We seldom see that a whole family is virtuous: the good and evil cannot well agree; and the evil can yet less agree with one another; even the virtuous fall sometimes to variance, when their virtues are of different kinds, and tending to extremes. In general, those parents have most reverence who most deserve it; for he that lives well cannot be despised.

"Many other evils infest private life. Some are the slaves of servants, whom they have trusted with their affairs. Some are kept in continual anxiety by the caprice of rich relations, whom they cannot please and dare not offend. Some husbands are imperious, and some wives perverse; and it is always more easy to do evil than good, though the wisdom or virtue of one can very rarely make many happy, the folly or vice of one may often make many miserable."

"If such be the general effect of marriage," said the prince, "I shall, for the future, think it dangerous to connect my interests with that of another, lest I should be unhappy by my partner's fault."

"The opinions of children and parents, the young and the old, are naturally opposite, by the contrary effects of hope and despondency, of expectation and experience, without crime or folly on either side. The colors of life in youth and age appear different, as the face of nature in Spring and Winter. And how can children credit the assertions of parents when their own eyes show them to be false?

"Few parents act in such a manner as much to enforce their maxims by the credit of their lives. The old man trusts wholly to slow contrivance and gradual progression: the youth believes in force, vigor and precipitance. The old man pays regard to riches, the young man reverences virtue. The old man deifies prudence, the youth commits himself to magnanimity and chance. The young man, who intends no ill, believes that none is intended, and therefore acts with openness and candor; but his father, having suffered the injuries of fraud, is impelled to suspect, and too often allured to practice it. Age looks with anger on the temerity of youth, and youth with contempt on the scrupulosity of age. Thus parents and children, for the most part, live on to love less and less: and if those whom nature has thus closely united are the torments of each other, where are we to look for tenderness and consolation?"

"I have met," said the princess, "with many who live single for that reason; but I never found that their prudence ought to raise envy. They dream away their time without friendship, without fondness, and are driven to rid themselves of the day, for which they have no use, by childish amusements or vicious delights. They act as beings under the constant sense of some unknown inferiority, that fills their mind with rancor, and their tongues with censure. They are peevish at home, and malevolent abroad: and, as the outlaws of human nature, make it their business and their pleasure to disturb that society which debars them from its privileges. To live without feeling or exciting sympathy, to be fortunate without adding to the felicity of others, or afflicted without tasting the balm of pity, is a state more gloomy than solitude: it is not retreat, but exclusion from mankind. Marriage has many pains, but celibacy has no pleasures."

"What, then, is to be done?" said Rasselas; "the more we inquire, the less we can resolve. Surely he is most likely to please himself that has no other inclination to regard."

We are now prepared to contract to build anything from an infant's carriage to a hack, or from a wheelbarrow to a lumber wagon complete. Painting, Trimming, &c. at the lowest possible rates. We have been backbitten and down trodden by our inferiors in business, but our motto is, "Labor against capital must and shall prevail." Hackmen, expressmen, and stablemen are solicited to give us a call with at least one horse crippled from hoof-bound, quarter cracks or corns, which we will cure free of charge, and we are sure of success. We claim that we have learned our business from the bottom to the top round of the ladder, and with our theoretical and practical knowledge of the business we are second to none on the coast. Do not pass this by saying it is a bore, or that we are imposters, but come and test us, and if we fail, of course we are the sufferers. Born of poor parents, even as our Savior, in a manger, reared in a stable almost, we think we are half horse, and able for anything that may come up. We started our business on a small scale, and have sucked the hind teat long enough. We have now turned out, as it were, the runty pig, to root hog or die. Remember the place.

THE News law student labors through a column this morning to prove the City Attorney as big a blatherskite, as the hero from New Zealand. Perhaps he is trying to undermine Gilcrest with a view of getting the position himself. Mr. G. must feel highly complimented by such an interpretation of his opinion as that worked up in the News.

THE superior local character of the TRIBUNE over the great morning press, is manifested in many ways. Our city and county directory is a most valuable adjunct, besides we publish all the letter lists of post and express offices throughout the city, the leading hotel arrivals, gold and greenback quotations, and overland lists of passengers to arrive the evening of publication, together with the undelivered telegrams of the respective telegraph offices.

THE following extract from the written opinion of the City Attorney, on the subject of raising the liquor license, is sufficient answer to the column of intellectual mush in this morning's News. The Albany student may "wind out" till doom's-day, and all his atmospheric pressure will come to this: "The Council could not, in my opinion, fix the amount or price to be paid to legally carry on such business at a sum which would preclude any citizen desiring to engage in the same. The benefit used in the charter (of the city of Oakland) means a pecuniary benefit, and I do not believe the Council have any right to discriminate in favor or against any particular business."

IN the days of the final contest between Democracy and Whiggery, every journal in the land was partisan. Nothing like independence, or candor, or judicial fairness, was known in journalism. It was understood to be the duty of Whig organs to stand by the party and its leaders, to justify party measures, extenuate party sins and defend party scoundrels. A corresponding service was expected from the Democratic journals.—Chronicle.

Yet those were the times so frequently heard of now-a-days as "the better days of the Republic," and ardently hoped may return again. If we are to believe one-half, aye one-tenth part of what the so-called "independent press" has to say about the decline of public virtue and all that, in connection with their self-praise for independence and right-eous influence, the sooner we return to the old-time party way of doing things, the better for the country. To hear these papers talk, the more independent ones introduced, the more rapidly the country goes to the devil. Isn't it funny?

THE careful study of political parties will lead one to some curious if not correct conclusions. There can be but two distinct parties in a war of death and carnage. Three parties cannot well fight each other at the same time. Usually, the only third party that ever puts in an appearance on the battle-field, is the one that follows up and robs the dead, or perhaps the third party may chip in after the manner of Pistol in the play, after he was played out at everything else. Said the "Ancient"—"I will to the wars and suttler be, and profits shall accrue." In political wars, however, there would seem at times to be a legitimate place for a third party, and that we do see them all three at it occasionally, tooth and toe-nail as it were, there is evidence enough perhaps. For instance, take the war of words and twenty-dollar pieces prevailing in Nevada at present; there is a triangular hair-pulling going on that throws the best of Cervantes' delightful scrimmages quite into the shade. Yet it is all plainly unnatural, and we shall not be surprised if a compromise be effected between two of the three contestants ere another day passes. In "the better days of the Republic"—a phrase we rather like to quote somehow—the country is said to have got along very well with two political parties that stood up and took and gave the hardest blows, in a manly way. Any third party interfering was treated as a person generally is who undertakes to stop a fight between husband and wife. On the theory that extremes meet, and on the report that in the better days aforesaid, the two great parties strived for the same end—the good of the country, the simile of man and wife is not so inapt after all. However, we are going through an era of "independence" in press and parties, and it is no less amusing than curious to note the movements, the weapons and the character of the contestants.

WE inquired at the Post-office this morning for the Rev. Dr. Benton, our worthy Postmaster, but he was not at home—perhaps gone with the crowd to the races. Our object was to ascertain whether he intended, on his own hook, to make up and send off by the overland train going east to-morrow morning, a Sunday mail. If he does not do so, all letters dropped in the Oakland office to-night for the Eastern States, or for Sacramento, &c., will have to remain in town over Sunday. This has been the state of things prevailing here, we are sorry to say, ever since the overland trains first put in their appearance at Oakland — the terminus — and people have been deceived right along in supposing they had a daily mail. How much longer this will continue remains to be seen. Brother Benton can anticipate, and oblige, by sending the mail in advance of orders from headquarters.

THE laws to regulate morals in this State, are pretty much a dead letter so far as enacted. Dice-box and other gambling is as common as selling liquor to minors and common drunkards. So long as horse and church fairs prevail, we cannot expect the police to do their duty toward the suppression of gambling in the lower walks. The sympathy of the average stomach with something stimulating, is also confusing to the intellect of the average officer of the law.

THE City Engineer should look to the character of brick required in the construction of that big sewer, quite as closely as to the lumber. He should inspect the materials before made into brick.

OUR paper necessarily went to press before time to get the result of the races. Mr. Hannifin informs us that he has made arrangements for posting up the result of each heat, as fast as received, at his corner.

THE story of "Rasselas, Prince of Abyssinia," is one of the most standard critiques on human life. It was written by old Dr. Johnson. We publish a portion of it on the first page of to-day's TRIBUNE.

The Temperance Cause.

The Congregational Assembly, that has been in session in Oakland most of the week, paid more or less attention to the temperance question. Among the resolutions adopted we see the following:

Resolved, That the Association does hereby repledge itself to unalterable devotion to the temperance cause, and that in all ways, by public speech and by private persuasion, as ministers, as Christians and as citizens we will spare no effort to bring about strong public opinion and all possible healthful legislation against the vice of drunkenness and against the causes and facilities which lead thereto.

Resolved, That all citizens ought, in the fear of God, to take care to use that sacred trust, the ballot, so as not to place in office men who sell or use intoxicating drink.

John M. Eckfeldt's Successor.

An appointment that has given more than unusual satisfaction is that just made by the President, who has commissioned Alexander Martin as Melter and Refiner in the Mint, vice John M. Eckfeldt, deceased. Mr. Martin has been connected with the Mint, both in the Assayer's and Melter and Refiner's Department, for a number of years, having been Mr. Eckfeldt's assistant for the past eighteen months.—Chronicle.

Death to Squirrels.

Mr. Henry Godart, the great squirrel destroyer, advertises under "New To-day." He claims that he can kill more squirrels in two hours than the Inspectors kill in two months.

Saturday Night.

Is the most prolific in incendiary fires and false alarms. It has been so in Oakland, at least. This being Hallow Eve, extra deviltry may be expected.

WEBSTER-STREET BRIDGE.

The Prospects of Repairs and Pay Therefor.

At a meeting of the Alameda Town Trustees, Mr. Mastic offered the following, which was unanimously adopted. It will be an easy matter to "request" the next legislature, as proposed:

WHEREAS, The Board of Trustees of the Town of Alameda recognize and appreciate the importance and convenience to the public of the roadway and swing-bridge which connect the Town of Alameda with the City of Oakland, and that the same should be kept in repair, and in a fit condition for use; and, whereas, the said bridge is in such a condition that it should be immediately repaired, but the Trustees of the Town of Alameda, by law, cannot appropriate any of the moneys of the said town for that purpose; therefore, be it

Resolved, That if the City of Oakland, or any person or persons, will advance sufficient money to repair said bridge, or cause the same to be repaired, this Board will request the next legislature of this State to pass a law providing for the payment of one-half the money which may be expended in said repairs: provided, however, that said repairs shall be made under the care and management of the proper officers of the City of Oakland and Town of Alameda.

Base Ball.

The Pacific Base Ball Convention met again last evening in the Police Court-room, at San Francisco, but, owing to the unavoidable absence of the President, adjourned till Friday next without transacting any business of importance. The Grand Centrals of Oakland were represented, for the first time, by the following delegates: A. W. Havens, E. C. McFarlane and C. T. Holbrook. The various other clubs were represented as follows: Occidentals—F. R. Webster, George Ebbetts and George D. Edwards; Oaklands—R. Cunningham, E. Darbrow and W. A. Reynolds; Athletics—D. R. Ashley, O. M. Boyle and H. U. Boyle; California Club—C. S. Neal, Charles Stewart and Wendell Easton; Mutual Club—R. Derby and W. A. Custer.

This afternoon the Grand Central and Occidental Clubs will contest for the palm of superiority at the Recreation Grounds. The Occidentals have carefully picked their men, and the contest will doubtless prove one of the most interesting of the season.

Will not Come to Time.

The fast trotting-horse Gloster, eight years old, by Volunteer, owned by Alden Goldsmith of New York, expired in San Francisco yesterday noon. His death was caused by an affection of the lungs. A post mortem examination was made and both of them were found to be diseased. They had evidently been so for some time. Gloster was buried at the track of the Bay District Fair Ground Association. He has been on the turf two seasons, and has established a wonderful reputation for speed and endurance. He trotted in Rochester in August last, four wonderful heats. The first a dead heat in 2:18; the second he won in 2:17¼; the third in 2:17, and the fourth and last heat in 2:19. The doctors say that Gloster was liable to drop dead in any race which he has been engaged of late.

New Watches, Etc.

Mr. A. H. Buehren has just received an invoice of ladies' gold stem-winding watches, to which he desires to call the attention of the public; also some beautiful hair jewelry. Mr. B. wishes to notify the public that in consequence of an over-amount of holiday work last year, he would be obliged to all parties needing his services to hand in their orders as early as possible, in order to facilitate their fulfillment. The finest stock of gentlemen's watches in the city can also be found at this establishment, as well as the best general stock of jewelry.

Good Templars.

Alameda Lodge, I. O. G. T., elected the following officers, last Friday evening, for the ensuing term: Alfred Bannister, W. C. T.; Sarah Thrift, W. V. T.; Arthur F. Barber, W. T.; George Wilson, W. F. T.; Emma Pembleton, W. T.; Ross Taylor, W. M.; May Millington, W. I. G.; Alfred Barber, W. O. G. A public installation of the officers elect will be had next Tuesday evening, Nov. 3d, at the M. E. Church, to which the public generally are cordially invited.—Encinal.

Dog Races.

Mr. Bloss, of the El Capitan Hotel, Merced, has made such liberal offers to the Coursing Club, that the matches will be run in his neighborhood. Excursion tickets for the round trip have been fixed at $7.50. The Club will leave for the coursing grounds on Tuesday, at 4 P. M., by the Oakland Ferry. There will be in the contest from 50 to 75 dogs, all imported. The drawing for the pairs will come off at Clem Dixon's, Leidesdorff street, to-day.—Alta.

Entered into Partnership.

John Held, our smart little merchant tailor, has taken into partnership, Chas. Dorsh. As they are both practical men, keep on hand a large and well-selected stock of goods and intend to do the best of work at a reasonable figure, their success is about certain. See card, elsewhere.

Board and Lodging.

A number of gentlemen can find good board and lodging in a private family, at 807 Washington street, near the depot.

The Fair

At the Catholic church, down Seventh street these evenings, is one of the attractions. It costs only twenty-five cents to get in.

$1,600.

A house of six rooms, and lot, for sale cheap—$1,600. See the advertisement under "New To-day."

Milch Cow For Sale.

In the "50-Cent Column" will be seen an "ad," of a milch cow for sale.

A MONTH'S WORK.

Police Court and Department.

Judge Jayne's tribunal disposed of four drunks to-day, one of whom paid his fine.

Perry Thompson, for being drunk and disorderly, paid $30.

Gee Lee, for violating the peddling ordinance, paid $20.

Thomas Russell, on charge of stealing two tumblers, will be examined on Monday.

MONTHLY REPORT.

Mr. Hoskins, the Clerk, obliges us with a brief summary of the business for the month closing with to-day. He reports 122 cases tried; $1,075.20 in fines imposed, and $776.20 of fines collected.

Down stairs the number of arrests foots up much larger than during any previous month in the history of the department, notwithstanding the number of officers is less. The entire number of arrests up till noon, was 157. The number may be considerably increased ere the end of the month yet. The force under Capt. Rand is evidently more harmonious and industrious than ever before.

Pictures, Mirrors, &c.

Messrs. Lutz & Berg, the enterprising proprietors of the only art gallery in Oakland, are "taking time by the forelock" and are letting the public know that they have on hand a stock of goods of the most elaborate designs and in the greatest variety, suitable for holiday presents. Elegant mirrors, fine chromos, beautiful steel engravings, exquisite moss boquets and other delights too numerous to mention, will be found constantly on hand. An inspection of their goods by intending purchasers before crossing the Bay will be found both pleasurable and profitable. Bear in mind the location, 1058 Broadway, between Tenth and Eleventh streets (east side).

Medical Students' Reunion.

The graduates and members of the Medical Department of the University, enjoyed themselves last evening around the festive board in San Francisco. The Faculty of the College were present, and some forty of the students and graduates. After the regular toasts and speeches had been disposed of, the suggestion to form an Alumni was offered, and readily agreed upon. The following gentlemen were elected as officers of the Alumni for the ensuing year: President, Thomas H. Cox, M. D.; Vice-Presidents, W. P. MacDermott and R. A. McLean; Treasurer, E. D. Martineaut; Secretary, J. Silverter; Executive Committee, Dr. A. A. O'Neil and W. H. Moys.

Tax Matters.

The amount of taxes for running the city government, foots up nearly $180,000, only about $13,000 of which has been paid into the Marshal's office. And of this amount, the C. P. R. R. Co. and Doctor Merritt have paid in nearly half thereof. The wealthy having a small proportion to pay, according to the amount of property in town, ought to be prepared to see the Captain's office first. The burden of taxpaying comes upon the ordinary homestead owners in the city, and it is a serious item with them. Taxpayers must remember that after the 16th of next month, five per cent. will be added to unpaid assessments.

The Special Horse Car.

Budd Doble's special car for the transportation of racing stock went East by the train yesterday, to bring from Ogden four more noted flyers to increase the interest in the Fall race meetings of this coast. The horses expected are Nettie, one of the most promising young mares on the turf, with a record already of 2:18; Red Cloud, quite a noted trotter, of whom great things are expected, and St. James and Camors, the $40,000 trotting team lately purchased by Doble for Chapman, the wealthy broker of San Francisco.—Sac. Record, yesterday.

Alameda High School.

At a late meeting of the Alameda Board of Education, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That H. H. Haight and Cyrus Wilson be hereby appointed to draw a form of advertisement for the presentation of proposals to erect a High School building, according to plans and specifications adopted by the Board, and report at next meeting.

Runaway Boys.

The police department have on hand seven runaway boys from San Francisco. Oakland has enough of boys of her own, and the metropolis can get her escapes as soon as she likes.

Receipt Found.

A receipt for $46 67, belonging to Charles Roberts, dated San Francisco, October 28th, has been found and left at this office. The owner can have the same by calling.

The Flying-Top Man

Is attracting a share of attention on Broadway. To spin a top in the air is a new way of extracting a quarter out of the average parental pocket.

The Close

Of the Congregational Assembly last night was a very enjoyable affair. Vocal and instrumental music enlivened the chapel till a good hour.

All Ready.

The steamer "Berkeley" is all ready to take the place of the "Clinton," and will doubtless go on the route to-morrow or next day.

The Weather

Is almost distressingly correct in character and quantity. Thus it is, people are never satisfied.

Religious Services

Will be held as usual to-morrow at the different churches by the respective pastors.

LIVERMORE.

Matters in Southern Alameda.

The Enterprise has passed its first six months and still lives.

The editor has been sampling a new coal mine, and will perhaps get some of the stock and get rich.

Five new buildings commenced this week.

They have had a meeting with a view to organizing a fire department. Their chief trouble in life is now fairly inaugurated.

They also want a society to prevent people from coming to town and playing cards and getting drunk, and leaving their horses stand out all day. We suggest a Local Option editorial from the News.

To-day they have a narrow guage railroad meeting. Antioch is interested.

Socially, Livermore has a literary and dramatic society to fall back on, and occasionally Vivian and his "blooming pal" appear for a change.

Of the grist mill there, the editor says the institution is at work night and day; has a 5,000-barrel contract on the tapis now. Proprietor of mill says in an experience of thirty years, he never was crowded with work as now.

Hallow Eve.

If old-time customs are to prevail, people with loose signs and vegetable gardens had better fix things before bedtime to-night. It is customary in some places yet, we believe, for respectable hoodlums to make Rome howl at Hallow Eve time. Doctors and butchers get rightly mixed up, and farmers are called out in their night-clothes to a reception of cabbages planted in the stomach. There is no end to the variety of deviltry. Let us watch and pray.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY.

Scene at the House of the Superintendent of Lake Chabot.

Mr. John M. Graham, superintendent of Lake Chabot, reports that about 12 o'clock last night, he discovered two men on the roof of his house. He says he asked them what they wanted, and their story was that they were on their way to Walnut Creek, and having to leave San Francisco in a hurry, they were hungry and wanted something to eat. He says his wife got them some lunch, and he handed it out to the sufferers through a window, not caring to have them come in. After refreshing themselves with the food, they tried to force their way into the house. One of them got his arms partly in under a window, when Graham brought a gun barrel down across one with such weight as to discourage the would-be intruders. He also broke the stock thereof. The weapon was not loaded, or he thinks it might have been worse for the rascals. Their story was of such a suspicious character that there was no mistaking their mission. It is a rather lonely place up there, and Mr. G. will hardly be caught out again with an empty gun in that way. He left town "heeled."

Meadow Lake.

The Overland Monthly for November thus speaks of the Meadow Lake in the brief glory of its mining days: "And so as all the dreams of the black-art, the science, the metallurgy, and the blow-pipe were set at naught. One after another, as they abandoned hope, the discomfitted gold hunters abandoned Meadow Lake and went down the mountain. More than $2,000,000 had been poured into the bottomless abyss of California known as 'dead work' to pay for mills, roads, buildings, mining, etc., not including those intangible and unknownable expenses inevitably connected with such schemes as this—$3,000,000 in all. Eight quartz mills had been constructed, carrying in the aggregate 72 stamps; and of all these only the U. S. Grant had yielded anything—about $100,000—or say one dollar for every thirty expended.

What a world of work was here done in vain! Besides this town of 650 houses, which was more handsome and substantial than is the wont of the mining towns, and the eight fine quartz mills, with their ponderous machinery, there were built the neighboring villages of Ossaville, Carlyle, Paris and Mendoza, all of which together contained about a hundred houses or more. Nearly a hundred miles of stage roads were constructed; stations and stables built along them at regular intervals; wells dug; four saw mills erected: forests leveled widely around and converted into lumber; lines of stages established; caravans of huge mountain wagons set in motion; and all the thousand and one appliances of civilized life provided. All this and ten thousand other things done in one brief summit Summer, give us an idea of the prodigious energy of the gold hunter, which goes a long way toward covering up his follies and his crimes.

—It is a common mistake to suppose that eating before sleep is injurious. This entirely depends upon the quantity. Not at all unfrequently does it happen that people are sleepless for want of food, and a little taken either when they first go to bed or when they thus awake sleepless, will be generally found far more efficacious, and of course infinitely less injurious, than any drug in the chemist's pharmacopia. These are the physical remedies for sleeplessness which have the best recommendation. As for the moral ones, there is certainly a good deal more to be said. Perhaps the most stringent of all rules are: "Avoid anxiety!" and "Don't go to bed owing anybody a grudge!" Chewing the bitter end of a quarrel is a thousandfold more injurious to repose than swallowing a whole teapotful of the very greenest of green tea!

BEALE'S

IMPROVED

Fire Proof Paint

Patented by United States Government, June, 1874.

Especially Adapted to Shingle Roofs.

THE BEST PRESERVATIVE FOR WOOD KNOWN.

Fire Proof Against Sparks and Coals.

IT IS HIGHLY ORNAMENTAL, GIVING THE APPEARANCE OF SLATE-ROOF.

One Painting will Last as Long as Four with any other Paint.

FOR TIN AND IRON IT CANNOT BE EXCELLED, AS IT WILL NOT CRACK AND PEEL OFF, AND WILL NOT CORRODE.

CHEAP AND DURABLE!

THE PAINTING OF SHINGLED ROOFS is commanding itself more and more to the public taste and judgment, and the grand desideratum is to be sure of a material which possesses all the necessary qualities, viz: Durability, Cheapness, Fire Proof, and Approved Appearance.

The combination of these desirable qualities has been secured in this Paint, through an experience of forty years' practical knowledge in the compounding and use of all kinds of Paints, and a special study of this branch, together with a thorough knowledge of the various materials used for this purpose.

That I have been successful in this matter can be abundantly proved by testimonials from those who have seen and proved my Paint.

It preserves the shingles by thoroughly saturating the wood, leaving no ridge or sediment at the butts, to create a gathering of water, thus rotting the shingles, but reverses this by penetrating the wood as far as the rain would otherwise affect it. It is a thorough protection against all dying fire to which roofs are ordinarily exposed, and no equal improvement to the looks of a building can so cheaply be purchased as a coat of this Paint upon roof.

PRIVATE MEDICAL AID!

QUICK CURES! MODERATE CHARGES!

DR. W. K. DOHERTY'S

PRIVATE

MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE

(Founded in 1858)

No. 519 SACRAMENTO STREET,

Corner of Leidesdorff, a few doors below the What Cheer House; Private entrance on Leidesdorff street, San Francisco.

Established expressly to afford the afflicted sound and scientific Medical Aid in the treatment and cure of all Private and Chronic Diseases, cases of secrecy, and all Sexual Disorders.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

DR. W. K. DOHERTY RETURNS HIS sincere thanks to his numerous patients for their patronage, and would take this opportunity to remind them that he continues to consult at his Institute for the cure of chronic diseases of the Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Digestive and Genito-Urinary Organs, and all Private Diseases, and he hopes that his long experience and successful practice will continue to insure him a share of public patronage. By his practice of many years in Europe and the United States, he is enabled to apply the most efficient and successful remedies against diseases of all kinds. He cures without mercury, charges moderate, treats his patients in a correct and honorable way, and has references of unquestionable veracity from men of known respectability and high standing in society. All parties consulting him, by letter or otherwise, will receive the best and gentlest treatment and implicit secrecy.

DR. DOHERTY would respectfully call attention to the following certificates from two of his patients, who, having fully recovered their health, desire to make known their remedial agent. It will be seen that their statements are fully authenticated by a Notary Public. The welfare of society imperiously demands their publicity, and they are given more to warn the unwary than to sound the praises of a physician, of whom hundreds of like cases can be cited, during a practice of more than twenty years:

A Case of Gleet and Stricture.

READ THE FOLLOWING:

DR. DOHERTY—Dear Sir: I feel my health so fully restored that, in common gratitude, I believe I should make you some written acknowledgment for your valuable services — particularly so, as your fee was small for the work performed.

I arrived in this city from the East about one year ago, and was then suffering from an old case of Gleet, complicated with Stricture. Being a stranger in this city, and believing those doctors who gave such positive assurances of success were necessarily the best (some of whom have a large number of titles), I placed myself in their charge, and continued under their treatment until I had lost nearly all hope and a considerable sum of money. I wish to say now that you are the sixth doctor I have employed, and the only one that has ever done me any service. I am entirely cured, and my general health is better than it has been for years.

In conclusion, I would say to the many unfortunates who require medical advice, if you doubt as to whom you should employ, ask DR. DOHERTY for my address, and call and see me, (I keep store in this city.) My experience may save you many dollars.

I would also add that, in the early stage of my disease, I used a large amount of the preparations advertised as an infallible cure for Gonorrhea, Gleet, etc., but never derived any benefit from them.

I am, Doctor, very truly, yours, L. H.
San Francisco, June 16, 1874.
Subscribed and sworn to before me this 21st day of June, A. D. 1874.
A. S. GOULD, Notary Public.

Seminal Weakness.

A Sworn to Certificate of a Most Remarkable Cure of SPERMATORRHEA.

A desire to benefit humanity, and a feeling of gratitude to DR. W. K. DOHERTY alone induces me to make this statement. For many years I had been afflicted with that fearful disease known as Spermatorrhea, but until 1855 experienced but little trouble or inconvenience. In that year, however, I had seminal weakness to a fearful extent, which was soon followed by the most alarming symptoms, a weakness of the back and limbs, pain in the head, dimness of vision, nervousness and general debility. My mind, too, was affected to such an extent as to seriously impair my memory; my ideas were confused and spirits depressed. I was averse to society; had evil forebodings and self-distrust, and was entirely unfitted for the duties of life. From 1855 to the summer of 1863 I employed the very best medical talent I could find, and spent several hundred dollars, but in no instance obtained more than temporary relief. I had about concluded that there was no relief for me in the world, but reading DR. DOHERTY'S advertisement, I thought I would call and see him, as he charged nothing for consultation. I had an interview with the doctor at his office on Sacramento street, and his fee for treatment was so reasonable I determined to try him, although I did not expect much benefit from his treatment. On the 5th of December last I placed myself under his care; in one week I found myself very much improved, and now, after five weeks' treatment, I feel thoroughly cured of all my troubles and in the enjoyment of the best of health. Hoping that my experience may be of benefit to others similarly afflicted, I subscribe myself, JAMES JOHNSON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 15th day of January, A. D. 1864.
A. G. RANDALL, Notary Public.

To Correspondents.

Patients (male or female) residing in any part of the country, however, distant, who may desire the opinion or advice of Dr. Doherty in their respective cases, and who think proper to submit a written statement of such, in preference to holding a personal interview, are respectfully assured that their communications will be held most sacred. The doctor is a regular graduate, and may be consulted with every confidence.

If the case be fully and candidly described, personal communication will be unnecessary, as instructions for diet, regimen and the general treatment of the case itself (including the remedies), will be forwarded without delay, and in such a manner as to convey no idea of the purport of the letter or parcel so transmitted.

Should your case require immediate attention, send ten dollars in coin (or that value in currency), by mail or Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, and a package of medicines will be sent to your address, with necessary instructions for use.

Consultations, at the office or by letter, FREE. Permanent cure guaranteed, or no pay. Address W. K. DOHERTY, M. D., San Francisco, Cal.

Spermatorrhea.

DR. DOHERTY has published an important pamphlet embodying his own views and experience in relation to Impotence or Virility, being a short treatise on Spermatorrhea or Seminal Weakness, Nervous and Physical Debility consequent on this affection, and other diseases of the sexual organs.

This little work contains information of the utmost value to all, whether married or single, and will be sent FREE by mail on receipt of six cents in postage stamps for return postage. Address,

W. K. DOHERTY, M. D.,
SAN FRANCISCO.
